Draft Officials Announce Tests

Captain Thomas W. White, State Director of Selective Service for Virginia, today announced an additional Selective Service college qualification test to be held May 22 at 1,000 testing centers for the benefit of students prevented by illness or other emergency from taking the test December 13, 1951, or April 24 of this year.

Officials at state headquarters said they could not emphasize too strongly that students who have certificates of attendance for either the December 13, 1951 or April 24 test which they failed to use at the assigned date must submit a new application if they wish to take the May 22 test. The old certificate they posted out will not admit a student to the May 22 test. He must secure a new certificate of admission.

Application blanks for the May 22 test may be obtained from the student's nearest local board and should be sent in as soon as possible to the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey. Applications postmarked later than midnight of May 10, 1952 will not be accepted.

Students who attain a prescribed upper class standing or make a score of 70 or better on the May 22 test will be eligible for consideration by their local boards for deferment during the next academic year. Local boards are not required to defer students who meet one or both of the criteria, Captain White pointed out, but their classifications are subject to appeal.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

As a Matter of Fact...

Out of all the newspaper and magazine columns I read, the ones I enjoy most are those that pack in a whole lot of facts — narrated facts, but each one an interesting bit of information in itself.

These columns go something like this: "Did you know that hummingbird whales are addicted to snoring? That bees have been bred with red, brown, and buff-color eyes?

"Did you know that coal can be converted to gold — at a cost of $1,000,000 an ounce? That a 555-pound fat girl went on a diet and lost 401 pounds in 12 months? That a chrysanthemum has been developed that smells like a violet?"

From where I sit, maybe I'm a kind of "always-one-note." My own columns always seem to revolve around one idea — a plea for us to make sure we respect the other fellow's rights — like the right to vote for your own choice or the right to enjoy a glass of beer now and then. I may not be in style, but I believe my one fact is worth repeating — and remembering.

PLANTING FOR GAME ON PRIVATE LANDS GROWING RAPIDLY

Acceptance of the idea of planting for game on privately-owned lands is spreading throughout Virginia with amazing rapidity. This is particularly remarkable in view of the fact that the project only started a year ago as a part of the state's first published long-range wildlife program.

In the spring of 1951 there were many who felt that it was fantastic to try to induce any great numbers of farmers to plant for upland game as a means of increasing the over-all abundance. Even after years there has been a steady and surprising increase in the numbers of land-owners enthusiastically engaged in planting for game on their lands.

The result has been that, thus far, farms embracing over 1,000,000 acres have been permanently improved through definite efforts to provide better habitat with seed-bearing plants. While plantings for game have been particularly heavy in the Piedmont and eastern counties, there is note of activity this spring in the areas west of the Blue Ridge with the development of an early-blooming strain of shrub lespedeza which will escape the early frosts in the uplands.

Five of the best district game restaurants of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries Gerald Virtually all of their time to the project shows as farm game habitat restoration development, with the other five technicians lending assistance. Details of their progress are shown in their quarterly reports. Their consolidated report for the first quarter of this year shows the systematic way in which the planting program is conducted.

More People Seek Travel Information

Richmond, May 7.- More persons are showing an interest in coming to Virginia this year than ever before, according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

The travel department of the State Chamber reported that mation individuals throughout the United States and foreign countries has almost doubled in 1952 over the same four-month period in 1951.

In response to these letters, and in the Chamber's continuing effort to boost travel in the Old Dominion to an all-time high in 1952, the travel department has mailed out more than 50,000 booklets and pamphlets to individuals so far this year.

The pamphlets, in word and picture, explain want a tourist can find at each of the hundreds of vacation and travel attractions throughout the state. New literature from several cities has met with good response, according to the Chamber, and the organization's three new 1952 booklets: Virginia Resorts, Summer Camps in Virginia, 1952, and "Here's Virginia," have been requested by individuals numbering in the thousands.

The Chamber believes most of the individuals are from persons who never before have visited the Old Dominion. And the increased interest has been aroused, in part, by hundreds of news stories in newspapers and magazines across the nation.

Also, the Chamber reported there has been an increased demand for photographs from the Chamber's photographic department, in itself a unique operation because the Virginia State Chamber is the only one in the country having a separate photo section. For Garden Week alone, the photo department mailed more than 2,000 pictures to travel editors and other publications.

In the fiscal year ending in April, the department sent out more than 15,000 pictures. They appeared in newspapers, nationally - circulated magazines and trade journals.

The photo section also furnished prints to the Virginia State Department of Conservation and Development for distribution through that agency.
